Mr Turdy:

On Sept. 18 in the afternoon, I received a call from my friend Heliette Saint-Jean informing me that Joyce Horman had been that afternoon to ask for advice as, when she returned to her apartment, she did not find her husband. Mrs. Saint-Jean told Mrs. Horman she would call a friend who worked at the U.S. Consulate (me) to try and find out what she could do in this case.

The first thing I asked Mrs. Saint-Jean was whether she knew if the Hormans had registered at the Consulate. If they hadn't it was best she visit the Consulate immediately. This message was given that same evening to Mrs. Horman by Mrs. Saint-Jean.

The following morning I advised Adriana F. of my conversation the day before with Mrs. Saint-Jean.

Mr. T. P. de R.
